Since 2015, Portugal has strengthened laws related to staying in the country, requiring detailed documentation about dates of entry and exit, and identification documents for all non-Portuguese citizens staying in Portuguese territory.

This law has been gradually enforced in Portugal and other countries in the European Union since the implementation in 1990 of the Schengen Agreement, with the aim of preventing human trafficking and other illegal practices.

In this case, it is specifically Article 45 of the Schengen Agreement and the recent law on Local Lodging in Portugal that require compliance with these rules.

This message was issued by the body responsible for monitoring foreigners, the Foreigners and Borders Service - SEF.
